We have three mistakes to clean up from the summer 2005 Bulletin: Nat Butler, who received the 2005 Founder's Day Award for his sustained and exceptional volunteer service to the Academy, is not a member of the class of '68, as we claimed, but rather the class of '64. And in our Commencement coverage, we misidentified a photo of Nicole Wilson '05. Our apologies to both Nat and Nicole, and to David Walsh '05 and Addy Fuller '05, the subjects of our Table Talk interview, the final line of which was inadvertently dropped. Here, in full, is David's parting thought about the Exeter Ballytobin/Callan Program, which offers two PEA seniors the chance to live and work in a residential therapeutic community for people with multiple disabilities: "It really makes you realize what's important in life, because you see what's really important to someone else."
